

CALL FOR CONTRIBUTIONS

CARL Review of Refugee Law and Practice

CARL's new digital law journal, the CARL Review of Refugee Law and Practice supports CARL's mission to foster the professional development of its members and enhance the practice of immigration and refugee law in Canada. Content includes short, timely pieces on a range of topics, touching on both policy and practice, and representing diverse viewpoints. The Review publishes in January of each calendar year and will be distributed to CARL members by email as a PDF attachment. The journal is also published on CanLII.

Who is invited to contribute?

Refugee lawyers, law students and refugee advocates, plus occasional guest contributors from outside CARL as selected by the Editorial Board.

Types of contributions:

Short academic-style articles and papers, case comments, practice notes, book reviews, op-ed style opinion pieces, informal empirical studies or surveys, etc.

Some suggestions:

Articles: Could be based on submissions you have done on a particular legal issue, a previous conference presentation you want to explore in greater depth, a term paper, or simply ideas or concerns you wish to share on a particular topic.

Case comments: Have a favorite case or cases you use a lot? Share your insights! If you have a favorite FC judge you could also analyze their body of work;

Practice notes: Tips and advice on a particular procedure or process;

Book reviews: Review any book relating to refugees or refugee law;

Empirical studies: If you want to share ATIP results or any informal statistical research (for instance on RPD, RAD, FC, H&C or deferral decisions);

Op-eds: a short opinion piece or reflection on a refugee-related topic.

Deadline for Submissions: October 1, 2024

Submissions should be forwarded by email to the editorial board at: journal@carl-acaadr.ca

Submission Guidelines: Submissions should be 1000-2500 words in length excluding citations. All contributions should be original and in either French or English. Submissions must be submitted by email in Word, as an attachment. Please use endnotes not footnotes. Submissions will be reviewed for clarity and should generally adhere to UBC's Legal Citation Guide.
